

Amelia Earhart
Sofia Arevalo
Junior Division
Individual Website
Word Count: 491

Amelia Earhart was a frontier in aviation as the first aviator woman to fly solo across the Atlantic Ocean (“Amelia Earhart Crosses...”). This event occurred on August 25, 1932 on a non-stop nineteen hour flight (“Amelia Earhart Crosses...”). Earhart's success had an impact on many women, and this led her to attempt what is now known as her very last flight (“Biography: Amelia Earhart.”). On Earhart’s attempt to fly across the globe, Los Angeles operators received a dramatic S.O.S. (“Clipping from The...”). After the S.O.S. was received, Earhart and her plane went missing and still have not been found to this day (“Clipping from The...”). Although her disappearance was tragic, many women were moved by Earhart’s bravery. To this day, Earhart influences many women to attempt any career that they desire (“Biography: Amelia Earhart.”). Earhart's importance of being the first woman to fly solo across the Atlantic Ocean changed how women are seen today (“Biography: Amelia Earhart.”).

I chose the topic of Amelia Earhart flying across the Atlantic Ocean because I think that her actions really inspire women to do what they desire in life. She is a true symbol of what great achievements women can accomplish. At the time of Earhart's flight, women normally did not have big and important jobs, so when Earhart flew across the Atlantic Ocean she inspired me and many other women to not be afraid to chase our biggest ambitions. Earhart had become a very respected woman because of what she did. Her actions really show me that I can truly chase any career of my choice and not be afraid of what others may think. For me, Earhart is a true role model who symbolizes just how much greatness a woman can give the world.

On the first day of researching Earhart, I used the Library of Congress website. I found some decent sources but I wanted a primary source that I could use for the most important parts of my website. I ended up finding a website that had digital copies of old newspapers. I searched for Amelia Earhart on the website and saw that the website had many newspapers from her time period. The next day I really looked into the website and found two really good newspapers to use. One newspaper was about Earhart flying across the Atlantic ocean, and the other one was about Earhart's mysterious disappearance. The next day I found some more secondary sources and I was pretty much good.

I chose the category of a website because I want to major in graphic design when I get to college. I thought that doing the website would be good practice for me to see how I like making digital projects. To make my website I started with adding all the buttons so the website could change screens. Then I added all the basic information. After I added all the information I decided to go back and add pictures and color to the background. Overall Earhart was a very fun and interesting topic for me to research.