Alexis, Ford Employee-. "Henry Ford Employee Interview." 10 Apr. 2024.

We will use this interview to know some of the requirements for working on the assembly line, like being able to lift 50 pounds, being able to move around, and the starting pay is $18 an hour. A quote that helped us see how Ford employees have changed their perspective "There is no such thing as a boring day at the Henry Ford," -Alexis.

blog.genealogybank.com/wp-content/uploads/2014/11/baltimore-american-newspaper-0221-1909-ford-car-ad.png. Accessed 11 Apr. 2024.

This newspaper article shows that the Model T was the best car at the time because of the assembly line, "The Ford Auto Company have sixty-eight bonafide orders for this car probably more than have the other dealers in Baltimore for all other makers combined." At the time even though 68 is a small number now, for car sales back then business was booming. This is a picture of an ad at the time.

Nilsson, Jeff. "The Ad That Launched a Revolution." The Saturday Evening Post, 23 Sept. 2018, www.saturdayeveningpost.com/2011/10/ad-announced-revolution/. Accessed 11 Apr. 2024.

This ad helped us find features of the model like it could have up to five passengers at a time or that it had 20 horsepower. "High-priced quality in a low-priced car," This showed how good of a deal this car was.
